NATIONAL MUSEUM OF THE PACIFIC WAR COMPLEX
(Use either the E. Austin St. or the E. Main St. entrance)
The National Museum of the Pacific War is a six-acre Texas Historical Commission property operated by The Admiral Nimitz Foundation. It includes the Admiral Nimitz Museum, the George H.W. Bush Gallery, Pacific Combat Zone, Plaza of the Presidents, Memorial Courtyard and the Japanese Garden of Peace.
GEORGE H. W. BUSH GALLERY (P6)
Expanded and reopened in 2009, the main gallery guides visitors through exhibits that begin describing the tensions between Japan, China and the U.S. and continues through to the attack on Pearl Harbor. Stunning exhibits include Midway, Tarawa, Iwo Jima and the Philippines among many others. The Gallery tour ends with the use of the Atomic Bomb, the Japanese surrender, the release of the POWs, the homecoming of American troops and the final exhibit showing the terrible cost of war.
ADMIRAL NIMITZ MUSEUM (P7)
Known as the Nimitz Hotel from the 1850s to the 1960s, the steamboat-style structure was built by the grandfather of Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz. ADM Nimitz, who spent his formative years in the hotel, went on to become Commander of the Pacific Fleet during WWII. The museum, completely renovated in 2007, showcases the evolution of the old hotel, early Fredericksburg, the Nimitz family & the life & career of Admiral Nimitz.
Open 9-5 Daily; closed Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.
Admission tickets good for 48 consecutive hours. www.PacificWarMuseum.org
